

TNR builds its largest door ever

In October, TNR Doors announced that it had manufactured the largest door in its history. The oversized, rubber roll-up door was designed for a 55' x 30' opening inside a 31-story, concrete headframe at a waste management facility in Ulaanbaatar, Mongolia.

Engineers considered wind pressures, cycles, corrosion resistance, and manufacturing processes to accommodate putting such an enormous fabrication through the shop. The final product weighed 25,230 lbs. (12.6 tons).

TNR hired a crane to load the door onto a special extendable flatbed truck for transport to the installation site. Another crane unloaded it, and two large lift trucks raised the door header above the opening for final installation. ■

Industrial Spring and Holmes Spring announce new name

On Jan. 1, 2019, Industrial Spring and Holmes Spring became IDC Spring. The decision to unify the brand was based on feedback from customers. The company's goal is to make it easier for customers to identify the company. The new name also more accurately reflects the current organization and its vision for the future.

The company will remain under the same ownership of Jodi Boldenow and Jeremy Sizer. IDC Spring will continue to have offices in Minnesota, Arizona, and Ohio. ■

Overhead Door earns Innovation Award

In October, Overhead Door earned Home Builder Executive magazine's Bronze Innovation Award for its OHD Anywhere technology that allows homeowners to monitor and control their garage door openers from anywhere via a smartphone.

OHD Anywhere can be installed with any compatible opener and is now fully integrated into Overhead Door's Legacy 920 openers. OHD Anywhere also allows homeowners to keep a log of dates and times their garage doors were in motion. ■
